MOROS A LA COSTA!

BY IMANOL GARCÍA

Martí, a young farmer must face the pirate attack that his village. Burak, the pirate captain, stands as a leader and promises to supply and defend St. Peter by gaining the trust of the majority of the inhabitants with his populist speeches. The village is full of pirates, but not everyone is willing to give in to the invaders. From the forest, Martí and other villagers make small attacks while waiting for help, but this help does not arrive. The militia decides to go one step further in their plans and tries to free relatives and friends who want to flee the village. This act infuriated the pirate captain who until now had not given importance to the militia. Burak mobilizes his crew to end this threat and follow his plan.
